

Southington Scene

Train, train and more training

Southington's police officers tested their mettle in several dangerous, high-pressure simulations, all safely within the confines of their headquarters on Lazy Lane.

The department spent two days training with an advanced law enforcement simulator, thanks to a free demonstration from Grey Wolf training specialists.

In addition to the simulation, the officers performed several defensive training exercises within the police department's gym.

Photos by
Tammi Knapik

Officer Chris Porrini aims his weapon during an exercise.

Officer Jim Valentine strikes with the makeshift night stick.

Officer John Marenholtz runs through the training simulation.

Officer Paul Carrubba follows through on a strike.

Officer Adam Tillotson locks onto a target.

Above, Officer Adam Tillotson partakes in the simulation.

Right, Officers Matt Vose and Jeff Ward practice striking with a nightstick.